

Barry (any ethnicity, male, 50s, supporting role): fellow record collector and friend of Louie's who sells music at flea markets around the state

Barry is reorganizing his flea market booth when he sees his friend Louie and Charlie walk up. Louie asks him about what seems like a very obscure record.

BARRY

Well, anything with Derby is tough to pin down but if it's after '73 it will be on that "Beyond Stax and Sun" list that Sue Crafton came up with a few years back. You have a copy of that, don't ya?

LOUIE

Well, I'm fairly certain it was before that. Like I said before '68.

BARRY

You're giving me mud and asking me to bake a cake Louie. What else you got?

LOUIE

I think KOZE used to play it.

BARRY

Stuff like that tends to fall into the cracks and stays there until you go fishing for it. I'd say there should still be a few 7-inches floating around. You check Psych of the South website? Ott has a hellva mountain of research under his belt.

LOUIE

He hadn't heard of em.

BARRY

WHAAAA? (a beat)

BARRY

(whistles long and low)
I don't envy you this one, man!
Good luck! And I do mean GOOD LUCK!
Hey, you know you might try Jack's new place, if you head that way.

END SCENE